February 2009

It's wintertime in Western North Carolina, but don't let the cold and snow keep you from getting out and exploring fun and meaningful service opportunities around town. Hands On Asheville-Buncombe is excited to offer several new creative projects this month that are perfect for these cold days—sure to warm you inside & out. So hunker down to one of these crafty projects, and make a difference in our community!

Kids Care: This new family-friendly project is a great way to introduce kids to volunteering. Kids are eager and excited to give to others, but it can sometimes be difficult to find age appropriate volunteer activities for children. Each month's project will involve an age-appropriate learning component and a hands-on craft activity. Finished crafts will be given away to others in our community.

Second Bloom: Share the love this Valentine's Day by making flower bouquets for local nursing home residents. With the help of volunteers, Second Bloom collects and recycles flowers from area florists and businesses that are headed to the landfill and passes them on to nursing home residents, rehab centers and Hospice.

Knit-n-Give: Are you looking for an excuse to knit or crochet on a Sunday afternoon? Look no further! Help make hats to be given to newborns served by the Buncombe County Health Center's Community Health Program. These hand-knitted hats are treasured by the client families and help provide incentive to keep important appointments with Community Health Nurses. Volunteers of all skill levels welcome.
